Girls Learning Engineering and Mentoring (GLEAM) Panel Discussion

The Girls Learning Engineering and Mentoring (GLEAM) panel discussion is for high school students to help promote gender diversity and inclusion focusing on networking and mentoring across topics that are of interest to women in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM) professions.

The discussion aims to engage, educate, and empower students on the facts and issues regarding gender diversity in STEM, and provide an opportunity to learn and ask questions from female professionals in the automotive industry that are very engaged with SAE.

Anyone is welcome to register including parents/guardians. The discussion will be geared towards high school students, particularly females who are thinking of majoring in engineering, science, or technology fields.

Panelists

Amalia Batori, Director Sales, Robert Bosch LLC

Maura Chmielowiec, Design Release Engineer, High Voltage Hardware & EVSE, General Motors

Missy Chmielowiec, Software IRT Co-Chair, General Motors

Laura Wontrop Klauser, Cadillac Racing Program Manager, General Motors
